8. Essays and Short Answer Questions

A. Freshmen Applicants

Students applying as freshmen to Johns Hopkins using the Common Application plus the Johns Hopkins Supplement must submit both the Common Application essay and and both of the short answer questions below (250 word maximum each). Include your name, birth date, and the last four digits of your Social Security number on these and all other additional sheets.

Write a brief essay (250 words maximum each question) in which you respond to the following questions. (freshman applicants only):

1. Johns Hopkins offers 50 majors across the schools of Arts & Sciences and Engineering. On this application, we ask you to identify one or two that you might like to pursue here. Why did you choose the way you did? If you are undecided, why didn't you choose? (If any past courses or academic experiences influenced your decision, you may include them in your essay.)
2. A typical student at Johns Hopkins spends less than 15 hours each week in a classroom, leaving lots of time for volunteer opportunities, clubs and organizations, athletics, social events, and other on- and off-campus activities. Aside from the academic interests you've already expressed, in what activities do you plan to engage as an undergraduate at Johns Hopkins?

B. Transfer Applicants

Students applying as transfers to Johns Hopkins are required to answer both the Common Application personal essay and the question below. Include your name, birth date, and the last four digits of your Social Security number on these and all other additional sheets.

In your personal statement on the Common Application, you explained why you are seeking to transfer. Please explain in detail why you wish to transfer to Johns Hopkins University specifically (500 words maximum).

9. Please tell us which major or area of study you are most likely to pursue at Johns Hopkins. Choose from the list below and indicate your first choice next to number 1. If you have a second interest, indicate it next to number 2. If you are unsure which major you are interested in, indicate as undecided within a particular school or area of study.

17. Go online to learn more about the following opportunities.

The Woodrow Wilson Undergraduate Research Fellowship is one of many opportunities for students to engage in hands-on learning with a faculty mentor at Johns Hopkins. A monetary award of up to $10,000 is granted to incoming freshmen in the Krieger School of Arts & Sciences. Learn more and apply at krieger.jhu.edu/woodrowwilson.

Each year, a select group of incoming freshmen are chosen to the Dean's Innovation Group (DIG), an honor that recognizes highly achieving engineering students. DIG members become part of the Whiting School's "Leadership Through Innovation" initiatives, where they work closely with faculty mentors, meet with the deans of the engineering school, and attend engineering-related events and lectures. To learn more about DIG visit apply.jhu.edu/dig.

The Johns Hopkins Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps (ROTC) offers many scholarship opportunities, including full-tuition scholarships with a monthly stipend and money for books; and two-, three-, and four-year scholarships. For more information, visit www.jhu.edu/rotc.

Johns Hopkins University is committed to recruiting, supporting, and fostering a diverse community of outstanding faculty, staff, and students. As such, Johns Hopkins admits students of any race, color, gender, religion, age, national or ethnic origin, disability, marital status, or veteran status to all of the rights, privileges, programs, benefits, and activities generally accorded or made available to students at the university. It does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, gender, marital status, pregnancy, ethnicity, national origin, age, disability, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, veteran status, or other legally protected characteristic in any student program or activity administered by the university, including the administration of its educational policies, admission policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic and other university-administered programs or in employment. Defense Department policies regarding sexual orientation in ROTC programs conflict with this university policy. Because ROTC is a valuable component of the university that provides an opportunity for many students to afford a Johns Hopkins education, to train for a career, and to become positive forces in the military, the university, after careful study, has continued its ROTC program but encourages a change in the federal policy that brings it into conformity with the university's policy.
