

Curriculum Vitae dr. ir. F. Kees Boersma

Kees Boersma was born on 22 April 1969 in Den Haag, The Netherlands. He received his secondary education and his B.Sc. Mechanical Engineering degree in Rotterdam. After finishing his engineering study, he worked for a couple of months in the German steel industry. In 1993 he started studying Technology and Society at the faculty Technology Management the Eindhoven University of Technology and followed STS courses at the University of Amsterdam. In 1996 he obtained his masters degree in Eindhoven. His master's thesis subject was about (systems) philosophy, sociology and technology.

Between 1996 and 1997 he worked as a junior researcher in the field of innovation studies at the Eindhoven University of Technology (Dutch regional SME innovation benchmark study). In May 1997 he started on a doctoral thesis in the field of history and technology and followed a postdoctoral course in social economic history. This work resulted in 2002 in the thesis 'Inventing Structures for Industrial Research. A history of the Philips Nat.Lab.' (supervisors: prof. Harry W. Lintsen and prof. Arie Rip) for which he won the EBHA-award 2002. He participated in the research schools N.W. Posthumus Instituut (social and economic history), WTMC (Wetenschap, Techniek en Moderne Cultuur – the Dutch school for science and technology studies) and ECIS (Eindhoven Center for Innovation Studies). In 2000 he joined the history department of the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore (MD) as a visiting scholar in the group of prof. Lou Galambos (business history) and prof. Bill Leslie (history of science).

Since August 2001 he is working as a lecturer/researcher in the group of Culture, Organization and Management (COM) of the Faculty of Social Studies at the Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam and is a senior research member of the Netherlands Institute of Governance (NOB: Nederlandse Onderzoekschool voor de Bestuurskunde). In 2004/5 he participated in an exchange program on Science and Technology Studies between the Vrije Universiteit and North West University in South Africa. He is teacher in, among others, the courses Organizational Behavior, Organizational Politics and Technology and Culture and supervises(-ed) over 25 master-students and PhD students.
